

please, lay down on the floor, where you are standing now.
look up. look left, look right. tilt your head up. what you see is alien, you've never seen this before in your life. Everything you can reach from your position lying becomes an ally.

What is home other than an accumulation of objects you've touched a million times before?